Second Chicago-Miami Non-Stop Fastest Yet

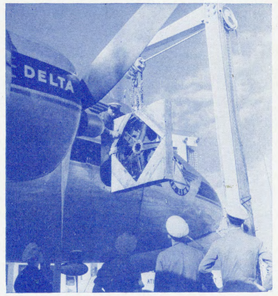
Delta's fast non-stop flying time between Chicago and Miami is being reduced even further with these new schedules. Soon after Delta inaugurated the first scheduled non-stop service from Chicago to Miami on November 1, pilots found they were consistently beating scheduled time over the 1311-mile route.

The southbound trip has now been cut from 6 hours to 5 hours and 36 minutes, while the northbound non-stop flights will take only 5 hours and 47 minutes.

A second daily non-stop has been added between Chicago and Miami, departing Chicago at 11:30 a.m. CST, and arriving in Miami at 6:06 p.m. EST. The other non-stop leaves Chicago at 11:45 p.m. CST and arrives in Miami at 6:21 a.m., so that it is now possible to leave after the end of the day in Chicago and be in Miami for breakfast, losing no time from vacations or weekend quick trips.

DC-4 Service Into Cincinnati

With the completion of the Greater Cincinnati airport, Delta has inaugurated DC-4 service into Cincinnati on its Chicago-Miami route, further cutting flight time to Miami. Ask for details.



STRANGE CARGOES — This 600-pound tractor wheel shows the scope of Delta Air Freight, the new fast, economical way to ship many commodities. Low volume rates start at 25 pounds, with optional pick-up and delivery service if desired.

DELTA was the first line to offer passenger service across the Deep South. That was eighteen years ago, on the original Delta route between Dallas and Birmingham and later Atlanta. Six passengers made up an ample load for the 90-mile-per-hour Travelaires. Fares were about 10 cents per mile, without meals or stewardess service. Today's rates are 4½ cents per mile, at 215 miles per hour in four-engined Deltaliners, with higher speeds to come.

Fly DELTA to the Magnetic South

As blizzards blow, and your compass swings to the magnetic South, fly Delta to summer sunshine. Step off at Miami just 5:36 hrs. from Chicago, via non-stop Deltaliner. Or take Delta express flights to other points of the sun-tanned South, where weather and welcome are equally warm.
